WAYS TO TELL IF YOU NEED A QUALITY ASSURANCE CHECK

A quality assurance check of remote test administrations provides data that enable you to make improvements to your policies, procedures, training, and more.

YOU JUST HIRED NEW VENDORS

If you've just begun working with a new remote proctoring vendor, you should have a neutral party perform a quality assurance audit to ensure your policies are followed to the letter.

YOU'RE PRIORITIZING SECURITY

Are you worried that your test takers are subverting your rules? Wondering if proctors are receiving adequate training or doing a thorough job administering your assessments? A QA check provides powerful insights.

YOU RECORD YOUR TEST SESSIONS

Do you have hundreds of recorded test sessions but no time to review them? Record-and-review methods of proctoring can always be spot-checked by third-party auditors.

YOU WANT TO EVALUATE

Whether you use automated, record-and-review, or live proctoring, you might be wondering if you'd benefit from switching to another proctoring method. A QA test will help inform your decision.
