16. If I had to choose a favorite math subject, it would probably be geometry.
17. I've always done well in science lab classes.
18. I enjoy writing stories in my spare time.
19. I am more likely to remember someone's name than their face.
20. I often have podcasts, videos, or music playing in the background.

Count up how many points you earned for the four learning styles by giving yourself 1 point for each statement you put a check next to.

The following chart shows which statements (#1-20) correspond to which learning styles. The max number of points you can earn for a category is 5.

Visual (V)	Aural (A)	Read/Write (R)	Kinesthetic (K)
1	2	4	3
7	6	5	9
8	11	12	13
10	19	15	14
16	20	18	17
Points: ____	Points: ____	Points: ____	Points: ____

The category you received the highest number of points in (up to 5) is your primary learning style, and the category you received the second-highest number of points in is your secondary learning style.

If you have two or more learning styles tied for the highest number of points, then congratulations—you are officially multimodal! This means that you have a roughly equal preference for at least two different learning styles.
