Office 365, Microsoft's fastest growing product to date, provides a highly scalable and cloud-based virtual computing platform that reduces and eliminates an organization's internal infrastructure. Adopted by over 80% of Fortune 500 companies, it represents Microsoft's primary go-forward cloud offering and encompasses key capabilities including web versions of Microsoft Office (Word/Excel/PowerPoint), SharePoint and Exchange/Outlook. Its prevalence, built-in productivity tools, first-class security and privacy controls, and premier scalability and reliability make it an excellent platform for an organization's contract management requirements.

In this webinar, Edelman will examine the importance of contract management and the challenges that organizations face when implementing contract management systems. He will discuss the pervasiveness of Office 365, and how this platform can be utilized to address these contract management challenges. Edelman will further highlight how organizations can leverage the Office 365 platform to provide a fully robust, end-to-end contract lifecycle management application.

“With years of positive experience as members of IACCM, we are excited to present an Ask the Expert webinar on this highly relevant topic,” says Edelman. “Office 365 has achieved great momentum in terms of adoption and increased familiarity. Microsoft’s continued investment in the cloud supports our strategic direction for the platform.”
