

Corridor Company Launches “Contract Management: Theory, Practice, Reality” Webinar Series

Webinar series for 2019 to focus on specific challenges in the contract management process.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass. (PRWEB) February 05, 2019 -- Corridor Company, Inc., a leading provider of contract management software, will launch a six-part webinar series titled “Contract Management: Theory, Practice, Reality.”

The series begins on February 13, with the webinar “Self-Service Contracts – A Leap toward Greater Efficiency.” Topics in the coming months will include contract creation, workflow automation, contract dashboarding, reporting techniques, and obligation management.

In each webinar, Corridor will explore a part of the contract management lifecycle that presents challenges to contract professionals, attorneys, business users, or executives. After identifying the costs of these challenges, the webinar will show examples of how technology can produce real change and cost savings.

While contract managers and attorneys have best practices to address the substance of contracts, they can struggle to keep up with contract volume, increased demand for contract review, a growth in complex agreements, or an accumulation of obligations that need fool-proof checking. Dealing with these problems is the focus of Corridor’s new webinar series.

“This new series responds to requests Corridor has received for a hands-on solution series with illustrations of contract automation techniques,” says Russ Edelman, CEO of Corridor Company. “The problems people are facing in managing contracts in the real world have real solutions which we can share in each installment of this webinar series.”
