What We Bring to the Table

The Right Mindset and Cross Functional Expertise: Oncology trial success begins with appropriate upfront planning. Our team leverages involvement from current studies, past positions, and experience within pharmaceutical, biotech, CRO, and academic organizations to provide you with a full range of drug development knowledge. This spectrum of experience ensures the most successful development strategy – using our medical, operational, and regulatory expertise. Our comprehensive understanding of Oncology drug development results in an appropriate study design of your trial and ensures that it is properly operationalized before program start.

High-Touch and In-Depth Feasibility Process: Site feasibility information is a vital component of study planning, site selection, and operational success. Accelovance’s feasibility process and methods are highly interactive and include cross validation of responses to avoid site bias and to ensure response accuracy. The result of Accelovance’s high-touch and in-depth process is accurate and detailed data and an average feasibility response of greater than 55%, well above industry average.

Specialized Recruitment Campaigns: Appropriate site selection is the first step to timely enrollment, the next critical step is to recruit appropriate patients into the trial from these selected sites. Our proven creative and proactive recruitment campaign methods enhance patient enrollment and retention. Accelovance is extremely confident in the results of our recruitment programs and can provide proven campaign strategies even during the study RFP stage.

Preferred Oncology Network Relationships: Accelovance is able to leverage preferred relationships with a strong network of key opinion leaders and proven, high-performing oncology sites. Our preferred relationships ensure that your trial receives special attention and fosters greater collaboration with you and the engaged sites.
