

Jeff Carbeck Joins 10EQS as Chief Executive Officer

NEW YORK, NY. 10EQS, a consulting firm that provides unique business insights with superior efficiency, quality and speed, announced the appointment of Jeff Carbeck as Chief Executive Officer.

In this capacity, Carbeck will lead the company on its mission to achieve global growth and shape the future of work.

“The 10EQS platform has already shown an ability to provide solutions globally to complex problems for consultancies, investors, governments, NGOs and global enterprises,” Carbeck said. “The next step is to accelerate the growth and impact of our platform, and continuously expand its capabilities through the further integration of emerging technologies.”

Prior to joining 10EQS Carbeck built and led the Global Advanced Materials and Manufacturing practice at Deloitte Consulting. He started his career in academia as Professor of Chemical Engineering at Princeton University. After leaving academia he co-founded and built a series of businesses enabled by emerging technologies. Carbeck works closely with the World Economic Forum, serving on a number of Global Councils.

“We are excited to have Jeff lead the team at 10EQS” said Barry Salzberg, former Global CEO, Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu Limited and current Board Chairman for 10EQS. “He brings a wealth of experience that will propel our expansion with professional services firms and commercial organizations.”

About 10EQS

10EQS provides unique business insights with superior efficiency, quality and speed to professional services firms and other B2B organizations around the globe.

10EQS combines the power of independent top tier consultants and specialized industry experts to help organizations drive growth and increase performance.

Learn more at: <https://www.10EQS.com>