

Any information exchanged via this website does not constitute legal advice or establish an attorney-client relationship with Stealey Law & Mediation, PLLC or James I. Stealey. This Website is intended solely for marketing and advertising purposes. The information contained on this site is meant to provide oversight of the services we offer and in some cases useful information and guides for you. The information contained on this site is updated periodically and fairly regularly; however, it should not be used as a substitute for speaking with an attorney about your legal issues and is not meant to comprehensively address your particular legal issues, which will be different in every case and usually encompass a wide range of issues and implications that can only be addressed by speaking with a lawyer. Therefore, you should consult an attorney for advice regarding your specific matter.

