Hint: Print this out and fill in the boxes with your team.

1.

Have you tried off-the-shelf software to solve your problem?

Most companies have to change their processes to fit a product or find that it has features they will never use (and lacks features they need).

(List off-the-shelf solutions or products you've used)

2.

Do you have a unique (but manual) process you're barely making work?

Perhaps you have a robust data flow that is irreplaceable. Keep the process, but build a more automated, digital version of it.

(Explain your current process)

3.

Do you need to integrate two or more systems?

(List the systems you would like to integrate)

Maybe your existing systems work great individually, but there are gaps and redundancies.

4.

Are most projects in your business unique?

(List the unique variables you need to track)

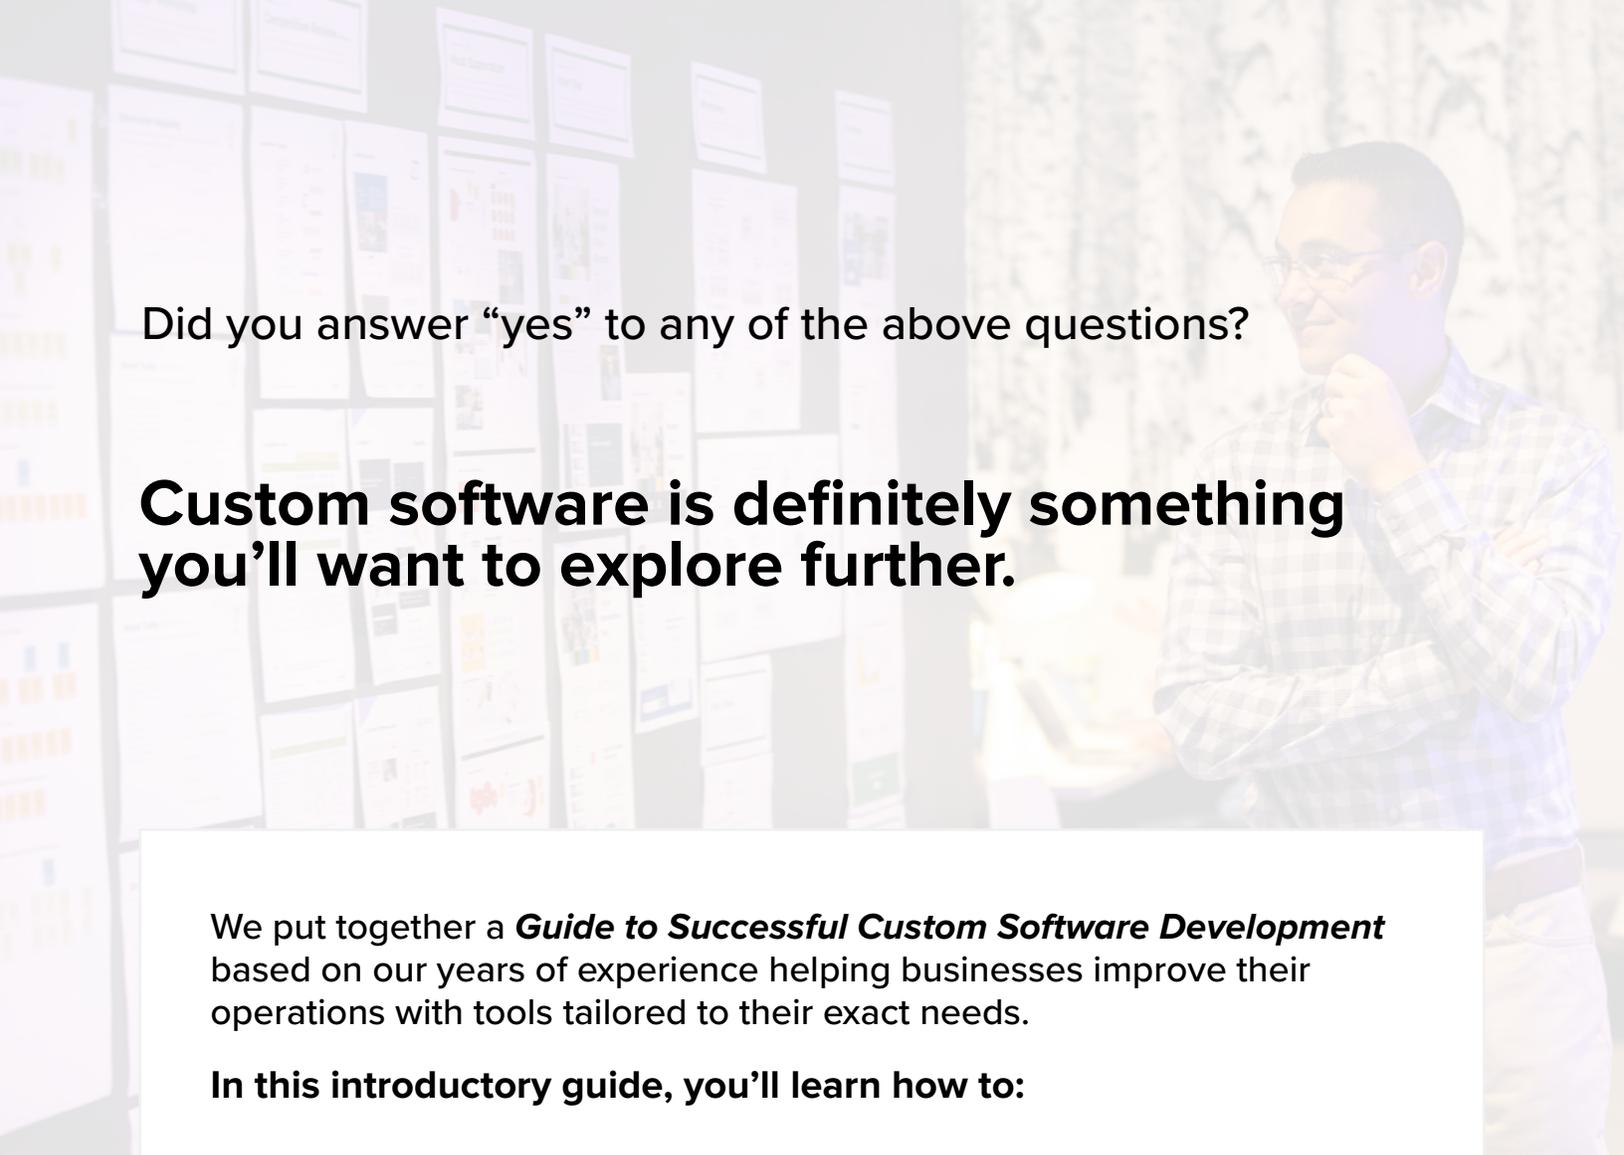

Your business is one-of-a-kind. The way you operate is your “secret sauce.” This is challenging for off-the-shelf solutions, because they are built for the masses.

5.

Is your business changing or growing?

(List the top three ways you need to evolve)

You can't scale inefficient processes. To up your game and strengthen your staying power you need a technical foundation that evolves with you.
