David Rubin is the Director of Service Engineering for the U.S. Department of Justice and has oversight for Unified Communications, Infrastructure & Applications, and Mobility Engineering. Mr. Rubin was previously the Acting Chief of the Collaboration and Compliance Section in the FBI's Information Technology Branch. Prior to working with the FBI, Mr. Rubin held roles within the private sector financial and legal industries. He holds a Master of Science degree in Information Systems from the Carey Business School at Johns Hopkins University and is a Certified Information Systems Security Professional.