History

South Side Park is a hidden 65-acre park four blocks south of East Carson Street in the South Side Flats. In the late 1800's and early 1900's the park land was laden with industry, including businesses like the Keeling Coal Company, the Sankey Brothers Brick Yard, the Baddeley Brothers coke ovens, and more. As these businesses declined the City established South Side Park in 1948. The Quarry Field section of the park includes a playground and sports fields, wooded trails that connect to the rest of the park, including the Bandi Schaum Community Garden.
