New York — Aug. 1

Tracy Duberman, a 20-year veteran in the leadership development field, announced the launch of The Leadership Development Group, a full-service firm offering services in executive assessment and coaching, group leadership development and organization transformation initiatives.

The Leadership Development Group serves organizations of all sizes in a wide array of industries, specifically focusing on physician executive and health care leaders; C-suite leaders; global leaders; and emerging and high potential leaders.

"Our mission is focused on enhancing the future of our client organizations by developing their top talent," said Duberman, president and CEO of The Leadership Development Group Inc.

Duberman was previously senior vice president, organizational effectiveness, and health care practice leader at WJM Associates, a boutique executive coaching and leadership development firm, and leadership and talent principal with the Hay Group, a leadership and talent development organization.
