A beautiful story about Steve's rags-to-riches journey. As a child orphaned into foster care and taken in by an exceedingly cruel foster family, he was fueled to create a better life for himself where he became a man of resilience, determination and vision.

Steve Pemberton

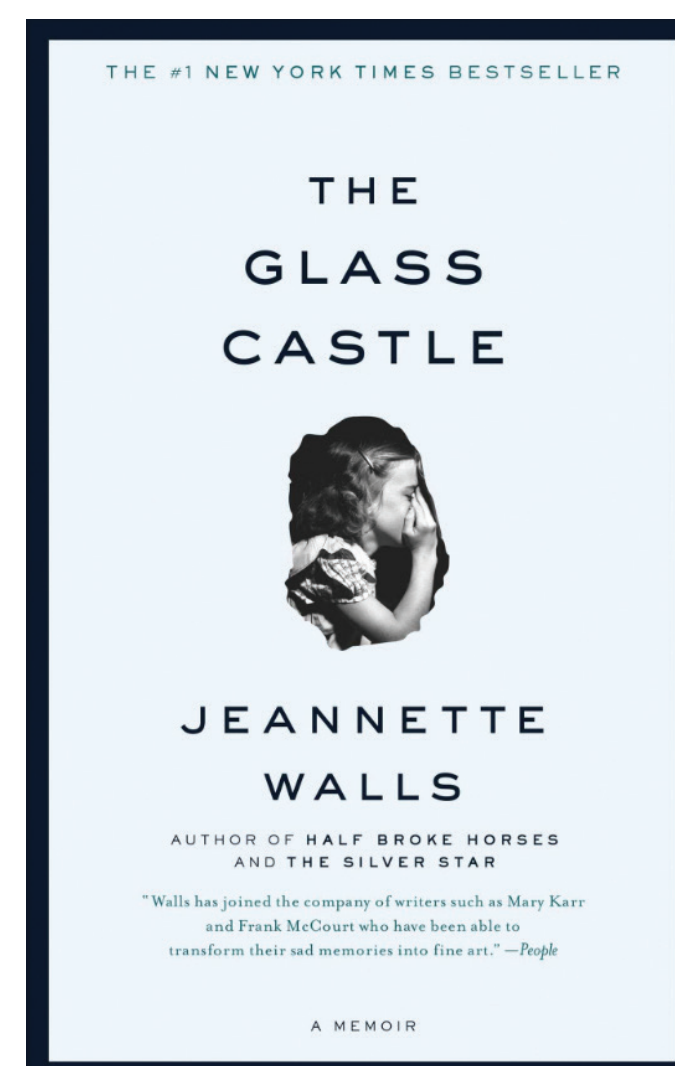

The author shares how educational opportunities, strong parental influence, mentors, and a community support network helped transcend the fate of a man with the same name as a man who lived just blocks away who took a tragically different path to prison.

Wes Moore

John's odds-defying journey celebrates the life-changing power of education. He's a champion of the Latino-American dream and provides thought-provoking insights into human nature and ethical behavior through his "What Would You Do?" TV series.

John Quiñones

Walls discusses overcoming hardship and the keys to turning adversity to your advantage, as she describes growing up in the American Southwest desert and then in a West Virginia mining town with her siblings and brilliant, unorthodox, irresponsible parents.
