

Make Sourcing and Referrals a Priority

Lever's Chrome extension empowers you to unite your entire team around sourcing and referring the highest quality candidates - whether or not they're actually on the job market.

With the help of our easy-to-use browser extension, your entire company can now source and refer stellar candidates in just a few clicks. Involve your team and boost the quality of your talent pool.

Build a culture of sourcing and referrals

Finding top talent is a team sport. Put Lever's Chrome extension in the hands of every employee at your company to get the benefit of their help without making them log in to another system. Engage your team to source candidates from social profiles across the web.

Take action on key candidates faster

Add notes, snooze, and change the stage of a candidate - all right from the extension. You can @mention a hiring manager, provide additional details, or progress a candidate to the next stage in just a few clicks.

See candidate interactions at a glance

Easily identify which candidates are already in Lever with clear markers, so you never do duplicate work. For candidates already in the system, view a full list of previous emails that have been sent and notes on the candidate so that you have the context you need to craft the appropriate message or decide on a next step.

Reach top candidates in 2 clicks

Connect with the right candidates faster by emailing them directly through the extension. Whether you're sending an initial reach out or following up with a candidate in process, you can do it all without leaving their social profile.

Track the effectiveness of every source

Always know where your team is finding the best talent. Candidate sources will automatically be included in their profiles when they are added through the extension. Run reports on the success of each of your sources so you can think strategically and prioritize your time.

How do I download the Lever Chrome extension?
