Scenario 1 College	Questions
You are a first-time college student at your dream university. One of the courses in your schedule is Calculus I. It's not your favorite subject, but you know that with du'a, hard work, clear expectations, and many visits to your professor during office hours, you might have a chance at doing well. Halfway through the semester, though, you realize that something is wrong: your professor never passed out a syllabus. He is never in his office during office hours, and you have no idea which assignments make up your course grade. What do you do?	<ol style="list-style-type: none"><li>1 What would you do if you were in that scenario?</li><li>2 What's your chance of succeeding at the challenges presented to you in your scenario? Scenario 2 Driver's ed	Questions
You are an aspiring driver enrolled in your first behind-the-wheel class. It's your first day actually attempting to drive, and you have a few months before your scheduled driving test. You get in the car, buckle your seatbelt, and make the du'a for riding a vehicle. An hour into your practice, you realize that your instructor hardly said a single word to you. She hasn't offered you any tips and didn't even react when you accidentally ran a red light! Why is she so aloof? you wonder. You email her later that week with questions and the message bounces. What do you do?	<ol style="list-style-type: none"><li>1 What would you do if you were in that scenario?</li><li>2 What's your chance of succeeding at the challenges presented to you in your scenario? Scenario 3 Barista job	Questions
You got hired at your dream coffee shop just across the street from your neighborhood. Although a coffee aficionado, you've never made a latte before, but you're excited to learn. To your surprise, your manager doesn't schedule any training hours for you. When you ask him for a barista manual, he says he doesn't have one for employees. He instead schedules you to start on the holiday weekend for a full-day shift, starting at 6 a.m. when the cafe is the busiest. You try calling him, emailing him, texting him throughout the week with questions, but nothing works. What do you do?	<ol style="list-style-type: none"><li>1 What would you do if you were in that scenario?</li><li>2 What's your chance of succeeding at the challenges presented to you in your scenario?
