Burnham Nationwide is the Industry Leader

Burnham Nationwide has over 25 years of experience helping clients obtain all the necessary permits and approvals for complex construction projects, and we operate in over 3,000 cities across the country. Our clients include Fortune 500 companies as well as some of the leading development and architecture firms. At Burnham, our experienced project managers provide expert guidance and handle communication with all project stakeholders, including regulating entities, design teams, and construction firms.

Burnham is Denver's Expert in Permit Management

Burnham Nationwide is the leading specialist in facilitating permits for Denver and surrounding areas. Operating along the Front Range for the past decade, Burnham's streamlined and transparent process supports our ability to develop effective and efficient strategies for any project.

We take ownership of your project whether an entirely new, complex office tower requiring a commercial building permit or a smaller tenant improvement using same day walkthrough.

We take charge of securing all the necessary approvals required for permit issuance to make sure your project stays on schedule and within your budget.

Our proactive and systematic approach, developed through decades of experience, expedites the entire permit process.

Burnham archives and tracks all your documents in our secure, state-of-the-art database.

We leverage our knowledge of Colorado and municipal building codes, as well as other relevant requirements, to conduct plan reviews and advise you on your project.

Our highly skilled project managers have expertise in all phases of the permit process, and the same project manager works with you through the entire life of the project.

Our wide-ranging services include assistance with licenses and discrete permits, such as landmark approvals, transportation-related approvals, stormwater management and permits, contractor licensing, and sign permits.

We enable all project team members to do their job better and are always available for communication on your project, whether it's over the phone, email, or in person.
