idX To Open New Facility in Baltimore

ST. LOUIS, MO--idX Corporation, a worldwide leader in fixture manufacturing, logistics and project management for the retail, hospitality, financial and point-of-purchase markets, has announced it will open a new facility near Baltimore, MD, bringing the company's total capacity to more than 1.9 million square feet.

The new 435,000-square foot plant, located in Gateway Commerce Center in Columbia, MD, will include state-of-the-art manufacturing, distribution and offices. At full capacity, the new idX facility will employ 250--double the current level.

The facility replaces two Baltimore-area buildings totaling about 325,000 square feet.

"The increased capacity and consolidated space in the new facility positions idX Baltimore to respond to future growth," said Frank Grelle, idX Baltimore General Manager. "It also allows us to work more efficiently and handle higher volume projects."

Grelle added that the move has been planned so that both facilities will operate concurrently for a period of time to allow a seamless transition, with the move to be completed in July.

In keeping with idX's commitment to sustainable business practices, the new facility will include such features as an integrated daylighting and artificial lighting system, energy-efficient HVAC and fan systems, and low VOC materials throughout. The building will also include a fitness center, a new IP Telephone system, WiFi, and a new warehouse barcode system.

Columbia is situated in the Baltimore-Washington corridor (20 minutes from Baltimore and 40 minutes from Washington). It has received international recognition for its innovative planning and was ranked 8th in CNNMoney's 2008 list of "Best Places to Live" in the United States.
