idX Dayton expands, moves to new facility

ST. LOUIS, MO--idX Corporation, the preeminent manufacturer of consumer environments, has moved its idX Dayton division to a larger facility just north of downtown Dayton, OH.

The move doubles the size of the operation and consolidates it under one roof, conveniently located less than 20 minutes from the Dayton International Airport.

The new facility is over 450,000 square feet, with newly renovated offices, employee spaces and production areas. The facility features 20 loading bays, double the number of the previous plant, a new high end wood finishing and painting room, along with a centralized dust collection system.

"I'm excited to see the planning and hard work all come together as this great group of talented and dedicated people move into the new facility," said Dave Mueller, Sr. Vice President and General Manager of idX Dayton and idX Louisville.

The current 142-person staff will expand by about 10%, with the addition of manufacturing personnel, engineers and project managers. "idX Dayton's greatest strength is its people, many of whom have years of experience designing, producing and installing premium retail environments," Mueller said.

idX CEO Terry Schultz added, "Although the idX Dayton division is a relatively new addition to the idX portfolio, it has quickly grown to become one of our core facilities, providing the high-quality, dependable performance for which idX is known."
