In automotive-related businesses, you may have employees who prepare hazardous materials, such as car batteries, air bags, degreaser or paints for shipment to other facilities or wholesale accounts. Your employees may also receive these products or transport them from distribution facilities, provide delivery services to off-site facilities or to customers.

If your company is involved in any of these activities, your business is required to provide adequate, documented training that meets all the requirements specified in 172.704 (HM-126-F). Recertification is required at least once every three years. The three-year period begins on the actual date of training.

Who should attend? All shippers and receivers need to be certified.
