Upcoming FIA product changes effective April 7, 2020

A key reason you recommend fixed index annuities (FIAs) is the protection that they offer your clients. The value of that protection is never as clear as in times like these. Interest rates have recently established new historic lows and market volatility is once again in the headlines. Of course, the protection you recommend relies on the carrier that backs those guarantees to your clients.

As you know, Allianz Life® takes its obligation to ensure the products we offer are sustainable in any environment very seriously. This obligation is why, in preparation for economic environments such as this, we've already filed and launched changes to several of our products that allow us to better manage risk in challenging environments. Those enhancements allow us to pass on more value to your clients even in the most challenging times. This forethought and discipline is why we have weathered financial crises in the past and intend to weather whatever the financial environment delivers now and in the future.

In light of the current environment, we will be making the following changes to new business effective Tuesday, April 7, 2020. These changes are necessary to ensure the sustainability of our products. Please keep in mind, without the product enhancements that either are launching with these changes or were previously launched, the required adjustments to the benefits would have been greater.

Thank you for your continued support, and remember – with Allianz, a promise is a promise.

Preventing elder financial abuse

Elder financial abuse remains an underreported and misunderstood issue – one likely to get worse as America's baby boomer population ages.

This type of fraud often involves the unauthorized or improper use of an elder's resources for monetary or personal gain – and sadly, it's often not recognized or reported. We have tools available to you to educate you and your clients about elder financial abuse.
