AVIA opens COVID-19 platform to all healthcare organizations; Adds American Telemedicine Association, others to Partner Network

Health Industry Leaders Leverage the AVIA Network to Accelerate COVID-19 Response with Digital

Chicago – May 18, 2020 – To support health systems navigating the COVID-19 crisis, AVIA, the nation’s leading digital transformation partner for healthcare organizations, continues to build its network of industry partners on the AVIA Connect platform. Through AVIA’s COVID-19 Resource Hub, open to all hospitals in the U.S., AVIA is partnering with the American Telemedicine Association (ATA), Conifer Health Solutions, and Gensler to provide digital health communities and resources.

In response to the pandemic, AVIA launched the COVID-19 Resource Hub within AVIA Connect, AVIA’s digital transformation acceleration platform, to support health systems with digital health strategies and solutions.

“Emerging stronger in the new normal requires virtual business strategies, significant cost cutting, and revenue enhancement,” said Bruce Brandes, General Manager, Digital & Partner Network of AVIA. “Our Members’ go-forward strategies are catalyzed by the AVIA Connect COVID-19 Resource Hub and the expertise of our Partner Network.”

As health systems rapidly deployed chatbots, virtual visits, and remote monitoring solutions to reduce the spread of the virus, consumers have responded with enthusiasm and increased demand. Virtual healthcare interactions are now on pace to top 1 billion by year’s end.

By partnering with the ATA, a non-profit association focused on accelerating the adoption of telehealth, AVIA brings hospitals across the country a thought leadership partner as they strategize about telehealth as an enduring component of their new normal business strategy. This transition includes understanding evolving regulatory policies and reimbursement considerations, best practices for clinician workflows, solution landscapes, and financial modeling.

“We must build upon the important gains telehealth has made during the pandemic and ensure that healthcare providers can continue to provide quality care to more people, where and when they need it. Now is the time to integrate virtual care into long-term business operations and care models,” said Ann Mond Johnson, CEO of the ATA. “With this partnership, the ATA and AVIA are bringing the necessary industry leadership and insights for providers to successfully transition to a new world where healthcare delivery will significantly depend on telehealth, remote monitoring, and home care.”

In recognition of the sudden financial burden and new strategic demands facing healthcare organizations, AVIA has also expanded its Partner Network to include Conifer Health Solutions, an industry leader in financial optimization and revenue enhancement. Additionally, the Partner
Network also includes Gensler, a global design firm focusing on human-centered design solutions that propel the patient experience forward immediately while thinking into the near and far futures.

“The pandemic created an imperative for global knowledge sharing,” said Brandes. "By learning from each other and leveraging the best thought leaders in the industry, hospitals can act faster in the face of this quick-moving virus."
