

Top 10 Reasons Businesses Should Install Status Lights in Their Offices

1 Improved Productivity

Chatty co-workers and gossip are among the top ten productivity killers, causing frustration and low efficiency in the office. Fewer interruptions make information workers more efficient.

2 Lower Costs

Status lights reduce in-person interruptions by 46%! Installing these devices in the office helps companies cut down the costs of disruption significantly.

3 Top Customer Experience

Office workers who can complete phone calls undisturbed can better focus on how they communicate with customers and business partners, further benefiting the company.

4 No More Missed Calls

Status lights in each workspace flash to indicate incoming calls or instant messages to ensure no important communication remains unanswered.

5 Increased Awareness

Project managers and co-workers can easily see who's busy or available at any given moment and can direct urgent tasks accordingly.

6 Better Coordination

With time, employees who use status lights grow to understand one another's work habits and naturally begin to limit impromptu conversations.

7 Excellent Collaboration

When people stop interrupting and learn to respect each other's workloads and priorities, team collaboration becomes more seamless.

8 Fewer Errors

Since employees won't be distracted as often, you'll experience fewer errors and misunderstandings among the team.

9 Reduced Downtime

Status lights allow employees to monitor their own activities and create productive work habits. In the long run, workers become more accustomed to deep work and better able to stay focused and on-task.

10 More Control on Individual Tasks

Employees gain control over how they manage their working hours by using status lights to show their availability.
