

DECRA Metal Roofing has gracefully complemented the ageless beauty and classic architecture of churches throughout North America for more than 60 years.

DECRA Shake gave the Saint Tekle Church the look of traditional shake with the exceptional durability needed to withstand the freeze/thaw conditions of Ottawa.

Churches, temples, synagogues, and cathedrals are frequently the architectural centerpieces of the community. Many houses of worship rely on classical design elements with prominent roofs including the traditional elegance of clay tile, heavy architectural shingles, or the rustic beauty of natural wood shakes. While these conventional roofing materials can fulfill the highest aesthetic standards for adorning a venerated place of worship, they all require ongoing maintenance and even complete replacement every 10-20 years.

All of the disruptions of roof maintenance and roof replacements can be eliminated with a DECRA metal roof. As the gold standard for elegance and durability, DECRA roofs are warranted to last a lifetime and can even qualify for insurance discounts in many states.
