

THE CHALLENGE

The economic development team at the City of Scottsdale, Arizona is responsible for developing, implementing and coordinating projects to promote the City's economy. Part of this role is in attracting new investment and creating new jobs in the region. Having identified key target industries and geographic regions, the team needed assistance in scheduling qualified meetings for marketing missions.

THE SOLUTION

The Target Regions

The City of Scottsdale team identified a number of key metro areas in the United States it planned to visit to promote the region and attract investment. Boston, New York, Chicago, and the San Francisco Bay Area were prioritized. With resource limitations, and an existing healthy funnel of companies to nurture, they decided to hire ROI to identify qualified leads in these targeted markets.

The Process

Tapping into the power of Gazelle.ai, the ROI Business Intelligence team developed targeted prospect lists of companies in the City of Scottsdale's identified sectors of interest in these cities.

> Upon approval, ROI's certified team of Economic Development Associates carried out its multi-touch outreach methodology to executives within these companies, engaging with decision makers, and identifying qualified leads for the City of Scottsdale.
