

SURVEY RESULTS

COVID-19 AND CONSTRUCTION

An in-depth look at how the industry is responding to COVID-19

GoContractor recently sent out an industry-wide COVID-19 construction survey to learn more about how the construction industry is coping with the current pandemic and what the impact of COVID-19 will be on construction sites.

We surveyed construction health and safety professionals, project managers, and others from Europe and North America to understand how the industry is mitigating the risks of COVID-19.

SAFETY IS A TOP PRIORITY

74%

Respondents delivering COVID-19 Safety training

52%

Respondents who believe projects need preventive and proactive safety measures to overcome the backlash of COVID-19 on their projects.

80%

Respondents who believe sending workers critical information and updates via video, word documents, or PowerPoint presentations straight to their cell phone would be useful during this time.

TOP MITIGATING STEPS

Refresh Safety Online

When asked how construction workers can best use their time if there is a downturn in construction activity, 55% suggested 'E-learning' to refresh safety, construction, or other skills.

Utilize Technology

79% of respondents would prefer sending worker data online

77%

Respondents who feel online safety training will be useful

GOCONTRACTOR