

4 reasons to partner with Hunt Club to hire game-changing talent

With U.S. jobless rates at record lows, catching the attention of top talent is becoming a momentous task. While the process might look a little different for every business, the goal is the same: source and screen top candidates, bring in applicants, extend a job offer, and successfully place candidates. Whether you're hiring for marketing jobs, digital marketing jobs, or enterprise sales roles, Hunt Club is a powerful way to unearth new talent, create movement in your hiring funnel, and stand out from your competition.

Drive access to more candidates

The best people aren't always in your backyard, and if you find you're looking at the same type of candidates or resumes, it's time to expand your talent pool. Hunt Club gets you into new markets, and into the right networks, you're not active in, faster. We understand when the right person introduces the right opportunity, at the right time, it's the most powerful form of connection in business. Our technology powers every part of the search process for you, connecting talented people to thousands of other talented people who could be your next game-changing hire to fill marketing jobs, enterprise sales, or digital marketing jobs, every time.

Identify needs & assess candidates for proper fit

You're busy running six to eight functions of your department, and it's incredibly complex to get candidates to take a look at your business. When thinking about what you need for your different marketing jobs or enterprise sales roles, it's incredibly easy to slip into wanting ten or twenty "must-haves" from candidates because there is often so much you need to be doing. Hunt Club helps you identify and think through what you need to hire for at the exact time. We'll consult with you to catapult your business forward. You'll be able to have a targeted approach and only talk with pre-vetted, quality candidates, getting you closer to your hiring goals.

Deliver an exceptional candidate experience

Most people won't turn down something they thoroughly understand. The challenge is that since you are doing six to eight different functions, you might not have the right things in place to ensure you're weeding out candidates who are an ill-fit for the role or your business. Hunt Club treats candidates with white-glove candidate experience, courting, and communicating on your behalf. We are a valid extension of your team, doing everything possible to educate candidates - everything from speaking about the role, your business, product road map, future financing, in exceptional detail.

Build your employer brand with passive talent

Unless you're a big-name company (or a hot startup coming off a decently sized raise), it's more than likely the average person won't know much about what you do. Additionally, things have become so transactional in the recruiting space; most people only want to understand how a candidate stacks up. Working with Hunt Club is a lot like having your PR firm—we can help with perspective, and build real relationships with trust.

Hiring? We can help: partnerships@huntclub.com