End-to-End Bid Event Control:
Fully Compliant Submissions • Total Transparency/Accountability
Streamlined Complexity

Running bid events is a time consuming, complex process that doesn't always give you the best bid at the best price, and often leads to disputes and even legal claims. Why? Because with paper-based responses, and even online systems, the opportunity for errors, disqualifications, missing data, misunderstandings, and missed deadlines is huge.

What's Different About Etegri? Etegri eliminates all of those issues and many more. Its computer-enforced rules ensure that your process is followed exactly, that every submission is compliant and error-free, that all document takers get the same information at the same time, and it automatically tabulates the responses the moment the event closes, eliminating the time consuming, error-prone step of transcribing data from the responses to a spreadsheet.

How Does Etegri Save Time and Money? Here are just a few of the ways Etegri saves time and money:
- Simplifies form creation with things like templates and standard clauses;
- Eliminates staff interruptions by handling Q&A via messaging;
- Distributes documents with a few clicks;
- Performs compliance checking during the response process;
- Eliminates printing, shipping, driving, and physical storage;
- Computes unit costs automatically;
- Eliminates claims and disputes.

Who Uses Etegri? From airports and construction companies to healthcare facilities, educational institutions, manufacturers, utilities, and all levels of government, procurement teams have been using Etegri technology for more than 15 years.

What Do They Buy? Everything from brain injury therapy and electronics to dams, pipe, catering, helicopter services, and IT equipment, to major & facilities construction, and much, much more.

How Much Have They Bought? Etegri technology has been used in hundreds of thousands of events to acquire tens of billions of dollars' worth of goods, services and construction.

What About Vendors? Vendors prefer eBidding and Etegri because it:
- Saves them time and money;
- Ensures that they submit error-free, compliant bids on time;
- Gives them confidence that the process is open and fair, so it is worth responding to;
- Computes total fields automatically, eliminating errors and saving time;
- Allows vendors to work on their responses until moments before closing;
- Saves the time, stress and cost of delivering responses in person.
