

Chris Tripp
SVP Global Sales & Customer Engagement

Chris is responsible for sales and engagement with ActiveVideo's service provider customers around the world. He is focused on helping customers to realise the business and operational benefits of virtualization and a cloud-based approach to delivering the next-generation of TV entertainment.

Chris joined ActiveVideo in 2016 leading customer engagement and deployment operations. He managed customer acquisition, existing customer growth, partner development and customer deployments, helping to scale the business through business and talent acquisition. Throughout his career Chris has held senior sales, product management and business development roles for example at Tolt Solutions, the IT infrastructure solutions provider, as well as at iPass.

Chris holds a BA in Communications Studies from Montclair State University.