FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CENTURION, INC. JOINS SYMITAR VENDOR INTEGRATION PROGRAM (VIP)
... communications software provider works with core software Episys provider to help credit unions easily integrate computer telephony applications.

TAMPA (July 8, 2013) -- Centurion, Inc. announced it joined the Vendor Integration Program (VIP) for Symitar[®], a Jack Henry & Associates, Inc.[®] company and provider of the Episys[®] core data processing platform for credit unions.

Symitar is a leading provider of core processing solutions for credit unions of all sizes, supporting more than 750 credit unions with enterprise-wide automation. Nearly 40 percent of U.S. credit unions with more than $1 billion in assets are now automated by Episys for core processing, which also has the largest market share of credit unions with assets exceeding $50 million.

Centurion provides communication products that allow credit unions to provide self-service options to callers through menus and prompts supporting touch tone or speech recognition responses. Centurion's solution runs on a single server software-based platform that integrates into a credit union's application suite to unify communications and centralize administration in one interface.

The Episys platform is based on an open architecture that is designed to accommodate the integration of any number of third-party software and hardware solutions. As a result of Centurion's VIP membership, credit unions using both Centurion and Episys platforms will experience a more streamlined and accelerated computer telephony integration process.

"As a dominant communications software player for 32 years, we're able to work with Symitar to provide credit unions proven solutions," said Kirk Wormington, Senior Vice President of Sales and Marketing for Centurion. "For either off-the-shelf or completely custom software solutions, credit unions can expect expert consulting, development and deployment with Centurion."
