				Rosen Law Firm, a global investor rights law firm, announces it is investigating potential securities claims on behalf of shareholders of Micron Technology, Inc. (NASDAQ: MU) resulting from allegations that Micron Technology may have issued materially misleading business information to the investing public. On November 19, 2018, the Financial Times reported that the Chinese government

				According to the lawsuit, defendants throughout the Class Period made false statements and/or failed to disclose that: (1) the Chinese State Administration for Market Regulation notified Micron it was investigating dynamic random-access memory ("DRAM") chip providers in China for potential collusion and other anti-competitive conduct; (2) Chinese had found "massive evidence" of anti-competitive behavior by Micron Technology and two other companies. On this news, shares of Micron Technology fell $2.61 per share or 6.6% to close at $36.83 per share on November 19, 2018.

investigators had found "massive evidence" of Micron's anti-competitive behavior; (3) Micron had engaged in a price-fixing conspiracy with Samsung Electronics and SK Hynix; and (4) as a result, Micron's public statements were materially false and misleading at all relevant times. When the true details entered the market, the lawsuit claims that investors suffered damages.

Micron disclosed only limited information about the SAMR investigation on October 15, 2018. On November 19, 2018, the Financial Times reported that investigators in China had found "massive evidence" of anticompetitive behavior by the world's top three makers of computer memory chips - Micron, Samsung Electronics, and SK Hynix. The article further revealed that Beijing could impose fines of more than $2.5bn on each of the three chipmakers if they are found to have fixed prices. On this news, Micron's stock fell nearly 7% to close at $36.83 per share on November 19, 2018.

Mergers and Acquisitions [Class:MERG_ACQ]	Investors should look for some simple M&A criteria: (1) A reasonable purchase price. A premium of, say, 10% above the market price seems within the bounds of level-headedness. A premium of 50%, on the other hand, requires synergy of stellar proportions for the deal to make sense. (2) Cash transactions. Companies that pay in cash tend to be more careful when calculating bids and when valuations come closer to target. When stock is used as the currency for acquisition, discipline can go by the wayside. (3) Sensible appetite. An acquiring company should be targeting a company that is smaller and in businesses that the acquiring company knows intimately. Synergy is hard to create from companies in disparate business areas.

Same Store Sales [Class:SAME_STORE_SALES]	This metric helps analysts determine how much of a company's growth is due to actual sales growth in the company's stores as opposed to expansion. Same-store sales tells investors whether a company is actually growing in popularity or improving its pricing power, or if it's simply growing its sales by opening more stores.
