Join the Carpenter's Club and Your Gifts will be Matched

"This is our dream come true. It's a long process, but so worth it," Hassan said to Habitat supporters at the dedication of his family's Richfield home this past December.

They will now benefit from having a stable monthly housing payment that is both affordable and locked-in for 30 years.

Prior to purchasing their home, both parents put in "sweat equity" by helping build their home, and now their mortgage payments will begin to provide the financial equity in their home. Gifts from you, generous donors who want to invest in families, keep the mortgage payments affordable.

As a believer in Habitat for Humanity and its mission, a great way to show your support is by joining the Carpenter's Club and making a recurring monthly gift toward our mission. It's easy and convenient.

A member of the Twin Cities Habitat Board of Directors is matching a year's worth of gifts from all new Carpenter's Club members — plus gift increases from existing members! That means your gift will go twice as far in helping hardworking, low-income families buy well-built Habitat homes.

All Habitat homebuyers complete a combination of sweat equity hours, financial training, and homeownership classes. This preparation — combined with affordable mortgages — ensures families are set up for success.

Dear Friends,

We build homes all year round, but spring is always an exciting time at Twin Cities Habitat for Humanity! As the snow melts away, new foundations are poured and soon our volunteers, staff, and future homebuyers will be busy framing homes all across the metro.

Spring also means our annual gala. Make sure you join us on Saturday, April 9 at the St. Paul RiverCentre for Hard Hat & Black Tie. You get to wear your most creative construction couture for this party that's a little less formal and a lot more fun. I hope you can join us for a great evening which supports our mission.

And this spring is extra special because we are finalizing the details on a bold new Strategic Plan to guide our work through 2020. I'm thrilled that it will include a significant expansion of our homeownership program.

Today too many lower-income Twin Cities families face an unsolvable math problem when it comes to housing. Their wages aren't keeping up with the rising costs of housing and there just aren't enough affordable mortgages available for families making between $30,000 and $70,000 a year.

At least one-third of low-income families in the Twin Cities spend more than half of their money on housing alone. This leaves them with too little left for things like health care and nutritious food, and makes it almost impossible to save for the future or pay for a college education.

An affordable home is a game changer for individuals and entire communities. It provides the foundation that a family can build upon. I'm so excited that we will soon break ground on a program to help significantly more families prepare for the responsibilities of homeownership and obtain a mortgage they can afford.

Your support is more important now than ever. Your gift is what makes it possible for families' mortgage payments to be affordable. Please join our Carpenter's Club by signing up to make a monthly gift. You are the key to brighter futures.

Warmly,

Susan Haigh
President and CEO

Ready for Spring Cleaning? Remember the ReStore

It seems like spring has come early this year. That means spring cleaning can come early too. Now is the time to search those basements, garages, and attics for all the stuff you haven't used in months, or years.

You'll be faced with the question of what to do with unneeded tools, unused building materials, light fixtures, gently-used furniture, and other perfectly good stuff that you just don't want or need. It's time to decide whether to have a garage sale or donate it all.

Garage sales are a lot of time and effort for not much money. Why put yourself through it? This year, do something that can help a family

With a new ReStore location opening, your donations of new and gently-used items are more valuable than ever.

buy a home of their own; donate it all to the Twin Cities Habitat for Humanity ReStore.

It's win-win-win. Your donations may be tax deductible; you win. The ReStore will resell that unneeded stuff at great prices; buyer's win. And all the proceeds go to help Habitat build more homes; families win.

The goal is to help build even more homes for hardworking families, but it can't happen without people like you. With a new ReStore location opening in summer 2016, there will be even more space to fill, so your donation of items will be more valuable than ever.

For a list of what kinds of things the ReStore can accept, visit restore.tchabitat.org/donate, then bring it all to the store at 510 County Road D in New Brighton, and drop it off. You can schedule a free pickup at restore.tchabitat.org/schedulepickup for larger items like cabinets or appliances. 🚚

Revitalization Efforts at work in MPLS' Jordan Neighborhood

Twin Cities Habitat for Humanity has a long record of building and repairing homes in the Jordan neighborhood on the Northside. Today it is one of two communities where additional Habitat work is being done under the umbrella of Neighborhood Revitalization (the other neighborhood is Frogtown in St. Paul).

GOALS

- Expand our traditional model of focusing on one family/home at a time
- Build relationships and trust with community
- Partner with residents to improve overall quality of life
- Concentrate our work to see a greater impact
- Partner with residents to support and strengthen community-led initiatives
- Integrate feedback to improve our services

IMPACT

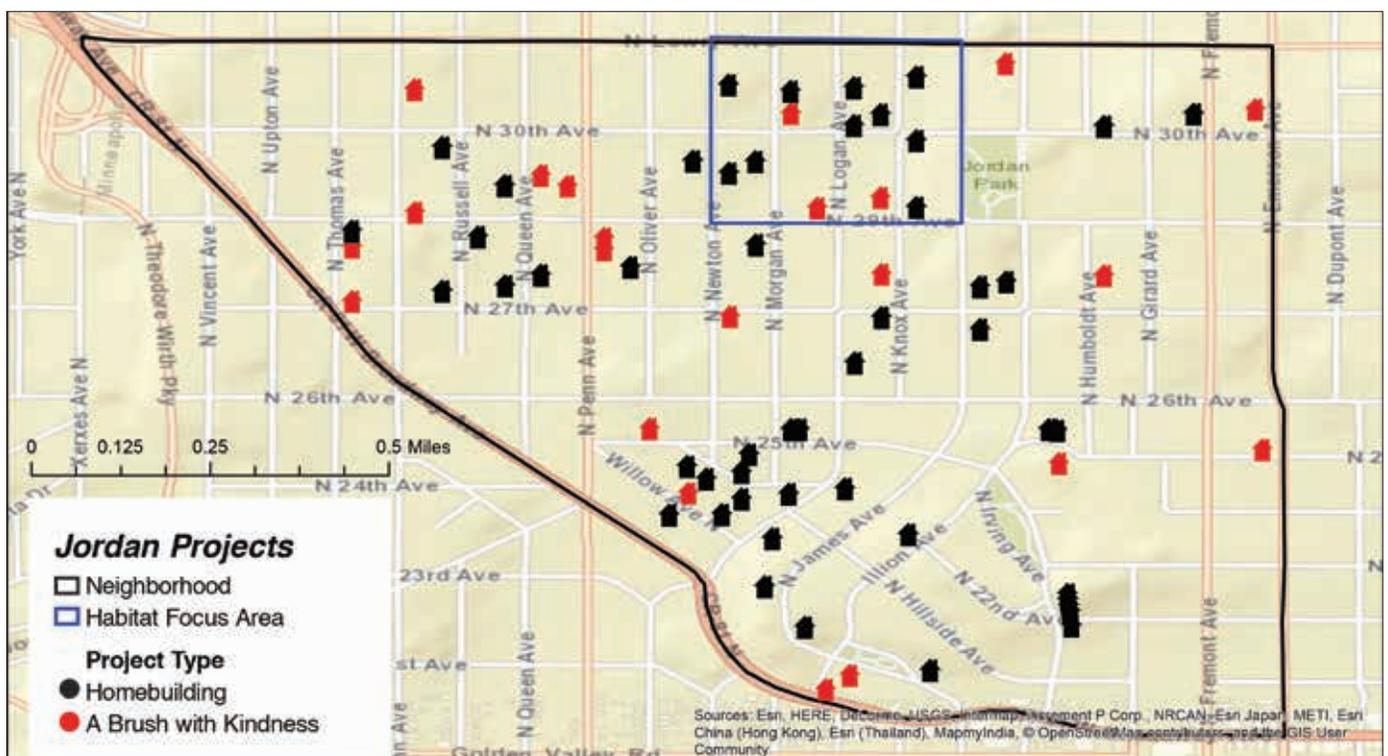

In 2012, prior to neighborhood revitalization, there were thirteen vacant lots in the focus area. Today, only five remain. We have built 50 homes and completed 22 repair projects.

We hosted many events that gave neighbors a chance to connect to each other, and community resources. The largest of these were the Rebuilding Block Party celebrating Jordan Neighborhood's recovery from the 2011 tornado, and Heroes for Habitat—highlighting the partnership between the police, fire departments, and the neighborhood, resulting in a reduction of crime.

PARTNERS

Key partners in the Jordan neighborhood work included the Jordan Area Community Council and the Northside Achievement Zone. Lasting bonds were formed with community residents as well.

The entire area is being improved in terms of safety, property values, and most importantly, the building of community connections that will continue to positively impact the neighborhood for years to come. None of these outcomes would be possible without dedicated partners, generous sponsors, committed volunteers, and dedicated homebuyers. 🏠

2015 Women Build volunteers in St. Paul check the angle on roofing work. Inset: Sharon Mason doesn't just build with Habitat; she attends fundraising events like Hard Hat and Black Tie, and the annual Hope Builders Luncheon, and travels for Global Village projects abroad.

Women Take Lead in Jordan Neighborhood Home Build

Each year a group of energetic and committed women take on building two new homes and repair another through A Brush with Kindness.

Recently this group completed building a home in the Jordan neighborhood of Minneapolis. It was the twenty-fifth home built by Women Build.

Sharon Mason, a Women Build Crew Leader has been involved with Habitat for fifteen years. Sharon believes women should give their time, talents, voices, and resources to strengthening their communities.

“Women Build is an inspiring example of what can happen when a community of committed people come together to make a difference. It's a mirror of the partnerships that have made the Jordan Neighborhood Revitalization successful,” Sharon said.

Sharon admires the way that women collaborate through Women Build. She's inspired by the volunteers' energy, creativity, and willingness to take on tasks they may never have attempted before, to get the job done.

“The fact that we are building a home and lending strength to a family resonates with women. To see that finished house, ready for a family, constructed by teams of women is just magnificent and uplifting!”

For Sharon and other Women Build volunteers, substandard housing is unacceptable, and negatively affects entire communities.

“Together, we are able to drastically alter the landscape to the point where everyone has access to decent, affordable, safe, and healthy housing,” Sharon says.

Sharon, Women Build, and Neighborhood Revitalization are examples of how partnership and commitment can fulfill hope for families in our community.

Thanks for “Living Generously!” Thrivent Sponsoring 9 Homes

Minnesota-based Thrivent Financial is the #1 all-time sponsor of Twin Cities Habitat for Humanity homes. They believe in giving back to Minnesota communities and in helping people “live generously.” Last year Thrivent members stepped up to be the primary sponsors of eight homes with Twin Cities Habitat. In 2016, they are doing even more.

Thrivent Financial is investing more than $800,000 to sponsor nine homes this year through Thrivent Builds.

They’ve also committed additional gifts through Thrivent Builds Repairs to fund the repairs on a number of other homes and to support local efforts for Neighborhood Revitalization.

From the partnership’s inception in 2005, local Thrivent gifts have provided homes for 80 families with 300 children. Internationally, Thrivent and its members have now committed more than $226 million and more than 4.7 million volunteer hours. Thanks, Thrivent! ➔

THRIVENT CHOICE PROGRAM

Thrivent works differently than most financial institutions. Eligible member-owners (those 16 and older who have Thrivent life insurance, health insurance, or annuities or who participate in Thrivent Financial volunteer leadership) have input into where some of Thrivent’s philanthropic dollars go, through the Thrivent Choice program.*

Last year, member-owners directed $50 million in grants to communities across the country, using Voting Events and using Choice Dollars.®

Volunteering AND Financial Donations Key to Success

Twin Cities Habitat for Humanity can fulfill its mission of eliminating poverty housing in the metro area through the support of sponsors and committed volunteers like you.

Many businesses and faith groups sponsor a Twin Cities Habitat home so their employees or members can spend a day, a week, or several weeks building or repairing a home. They contribute between $1,500 for a single day to $8,000 for a full week.

This generous level of support isn't enough to fully cover the cost of building a Habitat home. Every day on a homebuilding site requires more than $2,000 worth of materials. That's why we need to find funding sources above and beyond the volunteering sponsorships.

Making that happen is something you can do. We love it when you and your co-workers and friends volunteer on a build or repair project, and we thank you for that.

Consider becoming a donor, as well as a volunteer, by joining the Carpenter's
