

MAKE A BURGER

Team Building Activity

Directions: Instruct the class that they are to work together to make a loaded hamburger. Start with a bottom bun, add pickles, lettuce, tomato, cheese, meat and finally, a top bun, in that order. Tape one ingredient onto each student's back and instruct students to work together to find all the necessary ingredients and then line up in order. The first group to do so correctly wins. You can either play silently or don't allow students to tell each other what ingredient is on their back. Print and cut cards below.

Best Parts of our School

Why _____ School is Meritorious!

Individual Top Three Aspects of Your School

Complete independently. Write down the top three aspect of your school that you like. Remember, stay positive! Bonus points for using vocabulary words!

Class Top Ten Aspects of School

Complete as a class. Your group representative (this may be you), will share your group's Top Five List with the class. Together, you and your classmates will create a Top Ten List (Note: you are encouraged to sound erudite by using venerable vocabulary in your reasoning). Jot it down here so you have a reminder of why you like school on some of the ugly days.

Your Enigmatic Self

What are three unique things about you that no one else knows? Examples could include: you were born in a different state, you love to read books to a young family member, you had a unique experience at some point, you love a food most people do not, you have a family member that does something special, etc. Your classmates will guess who the person is from the clues, so be truthful but enigmatic (that is, mysterious). Note: using great vocabulary will give you panache and help you sound more urbane.
